Effortless Casts All Day Long

Endura Spey & Fly Line Dressing

When you start out your day on the water with a clean and dry line, every movement seems effortless.

Then, as the day nears an end, you find yourself adjusting your casting stroke. Each cast becomes more work to pull the line off the water and shoot through the guides.

Most everyone has this dilemma and attribute it to muscle fatigue or just plain tiredness. In reality, it's a dirty, sticky fly line. A dirty non-dressed fly line sticks, grabs and holds more water resulting in decreased casting efficiency and increased body fatigue. "Fly & Spey lines need a "SLICK STICK" to the water for ease of line movement."
